Re Item III

Non-establishment of opinion with regard to novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability

Claims 12, 13 and 15 relate to subject-matter considered by this Authority to be covered by the provisions of Rule 67.1(iv) PCT. Consequently, no opinion will be formulated with respect to the industrial applicability of the subject-matter of these claims (Article 34(4)(a)(I) PCT).

For the assessment of the present claims 12, 13 and 15 on the question whether they are industrially applicable, no unified criteria exist in the PCT Contracting States. The patentability can also be dependent upon the formulation of the claims. The EPO, for example, does not recognize as industrially applicable the subject-matter of claims to the use of a compound in medical treatment, but may allow, however, claims to a known compound for first use in medical treatment and the use of such a compound for the manufacture of a medicament for a new medical treatment.

Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: EP0895999

The document D1 is regarded as being the closest prior art to the subject-matter of claims 1-16, and shows C-4" substituted macrolide antibiotics.

The subject-matter of claims 1-16 differs from this known subject matter in that the substituent at the C-4" is different and the macrolide ring has a 9-oxime function.

The subject-matter of claims 1-16 is therefore new (Article 33(2) PCT).

The problem to be solved by the present invention may be regarded as the provision of further compounds with antimicrobial activity.

The solution to this problem proposed in claims 1-16 of the present application is considered as involving an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT) for the following reasons: From D1 it is not obvious using 9-oxime macrolide scaffolds having a different linker and a different substituent at the 4"-position.
